State Funding Requested: $ 25,000
One-Time NeedHouse District: 5 - C*Brief Project Description:

Detailed Project Description and Justification:

The City of Klawock opened its first library in 2001. The building now used for the library used to be the old health clinic and does not allow for efficient use of floor space. Heating is also an issue since the boiler unit broke this year. The boiler has been replaced by a Toyo stove for added fuel efficiency but the layout of the building does not allow for good heat circulation. A decent building is needed for the community library which provides internet access for students and residents, people who are in the GED program, and clients of TANF.

The City of Klawock has used State Library grants and City general fund appropriations along with the Klawock Cooperative Association, Tlingit and Haida Tribes Central Council program funding, and Gates Foundation grants to fund book collections, a computer lab, and ongoing operational costs.

The funding requested would allow the building to have more open floor space by eliminating the kitchen and boiler room and relocating the bathroom to an exterior wall and providing a store room for library supplies. The Toyo heating unit would then become more efficient in heating the overall building. Open floor space would also give the librarian better observation of patron use.

Project Timeline:

Funding would be secured in the summer of 2008 with construction beginning immediately.

There is still a $575,000. grant from Alaska Department of Environment Conservation for pipeline and intake structure development. A legislative request for re-appropriation of this money has been made to Representative Bill Thomas's staff. The State of Alaska is willing to re-appropriate the State of Alaska's portion amounting to $143,800. which would require a local match of $25,377.

The City of Klawock opened their first Public Library in 2001. The building now used for the library was the old Klawock Alaska Native Health Clinic which became vacant when Alicia Roberts Clinic was opened. This building housed the Native Arts Program for the Klawock City School District for a couple of years and then became vacant again when the old US Post Office was given to the City of Klawock and, because of it's proximity to the school site, became the Native Arts classroom. The City of Klawock has utilized State Library grants and City general fund appropriations along with Klawock Cooperative Association, Tlingit-Haida Tribes Central Council program funding and Gates Foundation grants to develop book collections and periodicals, a computer lab and ongoing operations.

While the building provided space for the Klawock City Library to initiate operations, the building design does not allow for efficient use of floor space or heating functions, with the demise the boiler unit last year. The need for continuing use of a library facility is evident by the increasing number of patrons and library cards issued. The library provides internet access for students and residents and clients of TANAF.
